

Bringing the District Back In: The Role of The Central Office in Instruction and Achievement

Martha Abele Mac Iver
Elizabeth Farley-Ripple

Because research and information make the difference.

Educational Research Service

1001 North Fairfax Street, Suite 500 • Alexandria, VA 22314-1587

Phone: 703-243-2100 • Toll Free: 800-791-9308

Fax: 703-243-1985 • Toll Free: 800-791-9309

Email: ers@ers.org • Web site: www.ers.org

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements iii

About the Authors v

Chapter 1:

The District Context 1

Chapter 2:

An Overview of Research on the District Central Office 7

Effective Schools Research 7

Positive Outlier District Studies 14

District Case Studies 18

Comparative District Studies..... 22

Chapter Summary: About the Research..... 25

Chapter 3:

The Roles of the Central Office in

Improving Instruction and Achievement..... 29

Decision Making About Curriculum/ Instruction 30

Standards as a Complicating Factor 32

Adoption of Externally Developed Programs 34

Supporting Good Instructional Practice..... 41

High-Reliability Recruitment of Principals and Teachers.....	41
Professional Development for Principals	43
Professional Development for Teachers	49
Physical Capital/Material Resources.....	55
Linkages Between Professional Development and Achievement.....	56
Linking Evaluation to District Decision Making	57
Chapter Summary: The Research Findings	66

Chapter 4:

Practical Implications for School Districts.....	69
A Model of the Central Office Role in Student Achievement	70
Implications for Practitioners	73
A District Policy Making, Feedback Loop Process	76
Implications for Researchers.....	77
What We Have Learned.....	79

References.....	83
------------------------	-----------

Index	115
--------------------	------------