

WEBINAR REFERENCES May 14, 2012

Annie E. Casey Foundation. (2003). The unsolved challenge of system reform: The condition of the frontline human services workforce. Available online at:
http://www.aecf.org/initiatives/hswi/report_rev.pdf

Astroth, K., Garza, P., & Taylor, B. (2004). Getting down to business: Defining competencies for entry-level youth workers. Professional Development for Youth Workers: New Directions for Youth Development. 104,13-24.

Bouffard, S. & Little, P. (2004). Promoting quality through professional development. Issues and Opportunities in Out-of-School Time Evaluation. (8), 1-12.

Buher-Kane, J. Peter, N., Olitsky, S. & Kinnevy, S. (2006). Findings from five out-of-school time focus groups: Professional development preferences, experiences, and recommendations for future planning. Journal of Youth Development. 1(2), 95-100.

Center for School and Community Services, Academy for Educational Development. (2002). BEST strengthens youth worker practice: An evaluation of building exemplary systems for training youth workers. New York, NY.

ChildTrends. (2009). Training out-of-school time staff. Research to Results Brief, 2009-05.

Costley, J. (1998). Building a professional development system that works for the field of out-of-school-time. National Institute on Out-of-School Time. Wellesley, MA.

Huebner, A, Walker, J, & McFarland, M. (2003). Staff development for the youth development professional: A critical framework for understanding the work. Youth & Society. 35(204).

Le Menestrel, S. (2003). Building a skilled and stable workforce: Results from an online survey of out-of-school time professionals. AED Center for Youth Development and Policy Research. Washington, DC.

McCain, M., Gill, P., Wills, J., & Larson, M. (2004). Knowledge, skills, and abilities of youth workers: The centerpiece of a successful workforce development system. National Collaborative on Workforce and Disability for Youth. Retrieved on May 17, 2006, from <http://www.ncwd-youth.info/assets/background/ksa.doc>

National Afterschool Association. (2006). Understanding the afterschool workforce: Opportunities and challenges for an emerging profession. Cornerstones for Kids. Houston, TX.

National Afterschool Association. (2009). Core competencies for afterschool trainers. Washington, DC.

National Collaboration for Youth. (2006). Capturing promising practices in recruitment and retention of frontline youth workers. Washington, DC.

National Youth Development Learning Network. (2005). Certificates, credentials, and degrees for youth development workers. Professional Development Newsletter.

Peter, N. (2007). Promising practices in out-of-school time professional development. Scholarly Commons, University of Pennsylvania. Philadelphia, PA.

Peter, N. (2009). Defining our terms: Professional development in out-of-school time. Afterschool Matters. 8(2), 34-41.

Policy Studies Associates, Inc. (2000). Training and supervising afterschool staff. The After School Corporation. New York, NY.

Quinn, J. (2004). Professional development in the youth development field: Issues, trends, opportunities, and challenges. Professional Development for Youth Workers: New Directions for Youth Development. 104,13-24.

Seligson, M. and MacPhee, M. (2001). The relevance of self at work: Emotional intelligence and staff training in after-school environments. Wellesley College, Center for Research on Women. Wellesley, MA.

Star, B., Yohalem, N., and Gannett, E. (2009). Youth work core competencies: A review of existing frameworks and purposes. Schools Out, Washington: Seattle, WA.

Stone, B., Garza, P., & Borden, L. (2006). A national professional development system for youth workers. Journal of Youth Development ~ Bridging Research and Practice. 1(1).

Stone, B., Garza, P., & Borden, L. (2005). Attracting, developing and retaining youth workers for the next generation. Retrieved on December 26, 2011, from www.nassembly.org

The After-School Corporation for Cornerstones for Kids. (2007). Staffing practices of high-quality after-school programs. Houston, TX.

Weiss, H., Klein, L., and Little, P. (2005/2006). Pathways from workforce development to child outcomes. Harvard Family Research Project: The Evaluation Exchange. 11(4), 2-4.